ST. LOUIS TEAM WIN THE SERIES

(From Sunday's Advertiser.)

The end of the haseball season has are the champions, having won both series with plenty to spare. The second game yesterday was not needed. for the defeat of the Kams by the Punahous, which was due simply to Johnny Williams' good pitching, made it certain that they could not be headed off.

The games vesterday were very low in class, though a good sized crowd was present to see them. It was a case of see who can throw the ball highest over a baseman's head and there were some fine efforts made in this line. As one of the spectators remarked, the games reminded one of the Nuuanu dam, they were so full of

As stated above, the Puns won on account of the clean work of Williams on the slab. He allowed only four base hits and gave but two bases on balls, while seven men fanned three The Puns were well assisted in their run getting by Lota, the Kams' third baseman, who fumbled almost everything that came his way and was away off from his usual game. Hampton was seen behind the bat for the Puns and then went in same position for the Diamond Heads, in the second game. He did good work, barring wild throws which caused more or less trouble. His batting and base running were features of the

For the Kams, Vannatta played in his old time form for the first time this year. He made eight assists and one put out, without an error, and some of his feats were worthy of special comment. Reuter was hit hard when hits counted but with better support would have held the runs down well.

The Puns started out in the first inning. Hampton hit over second and then stole. David Desha singled, sending Hamp to third. Captain Eddie Desha fanned, but Kia sent a grounder to third which Lota fumbled, scoring Hampton. Winne hit to Vannat-D. Desha scoring. J. Williams ended the inning. Vannatta to first.

For the Kams, Lemon, the first mar up, struck out. Miller went out, short stop to first. Jones got a pass and stole around to third, helped by a poor throw by Hampton, Vannatta got a base on balls and stole second. Lota struck at the ball three times but Hampton could not hold it and then threw wild to first, Jones coming home. Kuhina ended the inning by

The Puns brought in two more in the second. Sumner flew out to short. Williams followed suit to third. D. Desha got safe to first on Lota's fumble, stealing second and getting to when Jones threw out to field. Hampton got a pass and stole second. Jack Desha came through with a two bagger to left, which B. H. ...... 0 2 0 2 1 4 1 0 0-10 brought in the two runners. Eddle Desha went out second to first.

For the Kams the men went out one, two, three, Reuter being cheated out of a hit by a pretty stop by Jack Desha, who ran behind first and threw Soares, the ball without stopping to recover his balance. The game, after this stage, became uninteresting and there was more or less dissatisfaction in the er. crowd over the very evident lack of practise in both teams.

The second game was a slugging fest, with plenty of errors mixed up in it. The score of 17-8, in favor of the Saints, tells the story as well as any description can. Twelve errors on the part of the Heads and seven for the Saints, did not add to the fine work to be seen. Leslie was wild as a hawk, giving seven passes, while twelve hits, added to the fumbles, high throws and other misplays, made the big score easy. Bushnell was batted hard but was fairly steady. He did not pitch up to his usual form, though, by a great way. Clark and Darcy did the batting of the day, both coming out with three hits to show for their work. Crook, who was put in right field to help out the team, was way out of form. When he should have played up close, he was far back and vice versa. He hit the ball hard but was unlucky, being robbed of several good drives by the fielders. The first inning started out badly. En Sue worked Leslie for his base and stole second. He got to third on Evers' sacrifice. Bushnell got a base on balls and Fernandez threw home from second when he tried to steal, in time to catch En Sue at the plate. Eddie and Hampton worked the play very prettily. Williams got a pass. Aylett singled to center. Bushnell and Williams came home on Fernandez' wild throw. Louis made the third out, Leslie to first.

Hampton got a pass, stole second and third. Fernandez went out on a fly to Soares and a moment later Bushnell caught Hampton off the base and nailed him. Darcy made the third out, En Sue to first.

Bruns went out on a high fly to Darcy, but the latter allowed Lo On's grounder to go between his legs, and then stole second. Soares went out third to first, Lo On taking third. En Sue brought him home on a high fly to short right. Evers went out, Darcy to first.

After this it was hard to chronicle the runs and errors of the game. The Saints started things in the fifth, in the next inning, a little batting and many errors, chiefly bad throws, bring- of 6-1, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2. ing in the tallies. The Heads wandered along, making a run here and there, except in the sixth when they brought through five. It was as poor an exhibition of baseball as has been bad finish of a season which has been to decide the championship of the above the average, with the exception league, one-half of the proceeds to be of the Punahou team, who have gone to pieces badly in the latter part of ducting the expenses of the games.

Jack Desha made a pretty recovery and throw in the second inning. He has been improving in his game all through the season.

When Dave Desha shouted to Reuter to throw his grounder to third in the fourth inning, as he was hurrying to first, he nearly had the big pitcher of the Kams rattled.

Finally Fernandez thought he was not called on to quietly endure the remarks addressed to him and told Vierra that if he didn't keep quiet he would put him off the grounds. Vierra retorted that it was a public park

Nothing further was said at that time, but when the game was ended, and Fernandez ceased to be an official, but resumed his status as a citizen, he went right up to Vierra, and without any preliminary parley, let out right and left at Vierra. "I was working on a steamboat and as the chief engineer used to lick one of the crew each day to digest his lunch I had to take my medicine. The engineer came up to me one day with honeyed words upon his lips.

"'Now you darned cub of a she skunk, stand up and fight.'

"Then he nailed me square between the eyes. Down I went like a bull that is pole axed. The man fell on me like a mad dog. We wrestled and fought on the floor and rolled to the lurch of the steamer. At last I loosened his grip and staggered to my feet. knew nothing of boxing, but thoughts of my course of action came to me quick. Three times I ducked under his wild rushes and left and right swings for my jaw. Each time as I stooped under them I poked my left hand hard and stiff into his wind. This pulled him up blowing hard. I was growing cooler and felt good, but for a sensation like paper burning in my nostrils, the effect of that treacherous first smack between the eyes. We began to spar. Suddenly he stepped in and swung a wicked right hook for my jaw. I took it on my left arm, and as he fell into me over went my right hand straight from the shoulder. It landed fair on the corner of his long, bony chin. He dropped like a man that is shot through the ber of beautiful chances to score in heart. When he came round, ten minutes later, he fainted again. His caed to play like wooden Indians at reer as bully was ended. The crew was delighted. As for me I had found the punch."

ALASKA ROCKS

SEATTLE, Aug. 12.-While naturally, the principal exhibit from Alaska at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition which will be held at Seattle in 1909, will be the different golds produced by the north, there is another far mere valuable element that will also have a place in the mineral building.

Radium, according to a leading Parisian scientist, can be produced in large quantities from certain of the rocks of the north, and this savant, Henri Bertholet, son of a member of the French Gallery of Forty Immortals, is now in Alaska arranging for a shipthe mauka line of the road as the ment of rock to Paris where it may dium producer ascertained.

Gold is worth about three hundred present yesterday representing the dollars a pound. That is, it costs three hundred dollars to extract a pound of gold from the earth. Radium is worth about five million dollars a pound; at least it is figured it would cost that resents Sylvester Cullen who claims sum to extract a pound of radium from the pitchblende in which it is found. Of course no one has yet succeeded in extracting a pound of radium and the estimate of its value per pound is more or less approximate.

Radium, at the present time, is obtained only in one portion of the world. It is extracted from pitchblende of a certain kind found only in the Austrian Empire. It required that tons of pitchblende be treated to produce a few grains of radium, and this is one of the reasons for radium's enormous price. Recently Austria has forbidden the export of pitchblende in quantity, and as a result scientists experimenting with this newest, rarest and most valuable of the elements, have been at a loss to know where to get a permanent supply. Now all eyes are directed to Alaska and Yukon, and great hopes are held that not only will a permanent supply be obtained from the great white north, but also that this supply will be in such form that the cost of producing radium will be reduced from millions of dollars a pound to thousands or attorneys are put down as Ballou, even hundreds. When aluminum was first discovered its cost was prohibitive, the process by which it was produced costing hundreds of dollars a pound. But after years of experiments, a process was discovered which placed aluminum in the market commercially. It is hoped and believed by leading scientists that radium will also be produced in a short time commercially, and that ened and simplified.

Like so many other scientific discoveries, the knowledge that radium was present in the rocks of the north came quite by accident. The society for scientific research, of which Mr. Bertholet is a member, received several rocks from Alaska for a purpose entirely disconnected with radium. One of these specimens happened to be laid near a photographic plate. When the plate was developed there was found on it the outline of several instruments that were nearby at the time the rock and the plate were in conjunction. This led to an investigation which revealed the fact that in all the rock from Alaska were traces of radium. Hence Henri Bertholet's trip from Paris to Fairbanks. The exact location of the mine from whose specimens the radium was taken is not, for obvious reasons, announced. It is sufficient to say, according to Mr. Bertholet, that the deposits are of such extent that will avoid the necessity in future of science calling on the unwilling pitchblende deposits of the Austrian government,

"What will radium do?" repeated Mr. Bertholet. "Why, so great are its possibilities that the average newspaper and magazine articles, usually so exaggerative, do not tell half its wonders when dwelling upon it. Had I a pound of radium here and a row beat, I could repel the whole united attack of any hostile fleet attacking Seattle. The prospect of cheaper radium means more to the scientific world, and ultimately to the industrial world, than can be realized at present. I have great hope of the prospects of the trip I are taking to Alaska. It may mean great things too for the north, for the cheap production of radium will furnish employment ultimately for-well, I do not care to prophesy how many men, but the number will be greater than most people not familiar with the new element's possibilities can imagine."
